ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES.

SUNDAY'S DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, February 18.—The select committee on affairs in the late insurrectionary States will have a meeting to-morrow and agree finally upon their report, which will be presented to both Houses of Congress. Care has been exercised to prevent its premature publication. Notwithstanding this, it is known that the majority assert, by authority of witnesses, that the Ku-Klux originated in 1868, and that it was organized for political purposes. They do not, however, deny that there is much bad government in the South, but attribute this, in some respects, to the failure of prominent white citizens to take any part in politics. They think that there should be a removal of political disabilities, but excluding from the benefits of the same all distinguished criminals who have taken part in opposition to the government, and also those who have occupied office contrary to the constitutional disabilities.

The minority, it is said, expose what they term the scalawag, carpet-bag and negro governments of the South, and show the large increase of debt which they, like harpies, imposed upon the people. They deny that the Ku-Klux was organized for political purposes, but as a means of protection against armed negro thieves and other classes of offenders. In no one of the six States—North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida and Mississippi—are the Ku-Klux in one-tenth part of either State. No people on earth were more patient under their wrongs.

The minority also comment severely upon the President's suspension of the writ of habeas corpus in South Carolina.

Cotton declined early in the week and the market was dull, but the later decline was recovered and business was more active. The sales for the week reached 106,000 bales, of which 96,500 were for future delivery and 9,500 on the spot and to arrive. Of the spot cotton, exporters took about 3,525 bales, spinners 3,650, and speculators 375.

Our Bonds.

Our bond matter is getting right. Despite the heavy crusade by the bond colleagues of Bullock North, against the method of enquiry adopted by the Legislature, the financial world takes a proper view of matters. The New York World of the 17th has an editorial of the right stamp. It reiterates its narration of the whole trouble, explaining Georgia's law of inquiry. It winds up with these strong words, which are very satisfactory:

"Nothing can be more reasonable, fair, and proper than this course. It is what is done every day in the financial world when securities are required to be returned for verification, and only a stock-jobbing intention to profit by the manœuvre of "bearing" could have led to the assaults made on the credit of the State of Georgia. To ascertain a debt is the first step to paying and not repudiating that debt; and this step alone it is that Georgia has taken. The committee having the matter in charge seeks, as the announcement just made reveals, the widest publicity, and publicity is never the desired accompaniment of fraud."

The Brunswick and Albany Railroad.

We find in the Brunswick Appeal the report of John D. Rumph, Master in Chancery, about the Brunswick and Albany Railroad. This is the substance of the report:

Number of claims filed, 494; aggregate amount of claims filed, $3,383,225 18; amount of claims adjudged satisfactorily established, $423,369 28; amount of liens and other claims in execution, with costs, as charged, included, $107,277 10; amount of lien and other claims in execution adjudged satisfactorily established, with legal costs established, $98,381 34; amount of labor liens, other than liens, judgments, etc, adjudged legally and justly due, $13,141 39; amount of lien and other claims in execution, with cost as charged, and other labor claims as presented, $122,849 47; amount of approved liens and other claims in execution with estimated legal costs, with other labor claims, approved, $111,522 73.

The Galaxy.

The March number of this entertaining monthly has been received. J. W. DeForest contributes to this number a sketch of "The Colored Member," in which he introduces us to some of the humors of legislation at the South under the operation of the fifteenth amendment. "Corea, and what shall we do with her," by William Speer, is an entertaining discription of this country and other matters connected with it. The number contains a second paper on Tyler's administration, in which we are treated to a variety of personal anecdotes of the great men of the past generations, as well as of some of the present day.

The poetry of the number is contributed by Grace Appleton, Nora Perry and Bayard Taylor. A vigorous article on the "New York system of jurisprudence," appears from the pen of Ex-Attorney General Jeremiah Black. The usual Galaxy departments are filled with much choice reading.

Subscriptions to the Galaxy should be addressed to Sheldon & Co., No 577 Broadway, New York.

Nominating for the United States Senate.

The Houston Home Journal is both a practical and humorous paper. It makes a lively point on the subject heading this article, in the following short editorial, which we reproduce for the benefit of all concerned.

The newspapers are beginning to nominate their friends to the United States Senate. This is a highly patriotic idea on the part of the papers, and then, of course, when one of the prominent men of the State sees his name mentioned, he subscribes for that paper right away and pays cash. All the great men in our immediate section subscribe for the Houston Home Journal, so it is not necessary for us to nominate any of them. But here goes for some of them that don't take the paper:

We beg leave very respectfully to nominate for the United States Senate, to succeed Josh Hill, the following: Henry R. Jackson, A. R. Lawton, A. R. Wright, Charles J. Jenkins, Herschel V. Johnson, Iverson L. Harris, A. H. Stephens, R. Toombs, Linton Stephens, Pope Hull, B. H. Hill, Governor Smith, E. G. Cabaniss, General Gordon, General Colquitt, Tom Hardeman, James Jackson, Judge Warner, General Benning, and several others. If these men will subscribe for our paper, we will continue to nominate, next week. Any editor who will call the attention of any one of these distinguished men to his nomination in this paper, and will induce him to subscribe, and will send us a copy of the paper containing the notice, will himself be nominated for the same position and receive a lock of our hair.

Changing the Name of the Kimball House.

This subject seems to be engaging the attention of a number of our State contemporaries. The most sensible view is taken by the Albany News. The matter should be regarded in a business point only. The News says very practically and unanswerably:

"A change of name would be unwise and impolitic, not to say impracticable. It has been the best advertised house in America.

Far and wide the great building, its superb furniture, and splendid management has been the subject of discussion. Whether in praise or blame, all admitted that it was the finest hotel in the South—too large, too expensive, many urged, for its location in Atlanta; yet we have seen scores of guests turned off after it was crowded to its utmost capacity. As the H. I. Kimball House it became famous, and whatever efforts are made to give it another name, as the H. I. Kimball House it must be known for years to come.

The name is everywhere, written indelibly, painted, printed, stamped, ground in the glass, engraved on the silver, baked in the porcelain, wrought in brass, carved in marble, cast in iron.

The monogram is conspicuous in the splendid glass doors, in the glass roof of the elevator, in the street lamps and every where else where taste and ingenuity could devise a place for it. The pictures of the building are scattered broadcast over the land in every imaginable style of art. All trace of which may be destroyed, to the sight, but not in this century. The name is sterotyped on the minds and memories of the people. The building will remain the H. I. Kimball House unless its name is changed by a baptism of fire, and even then some Atlanta antiquarian will point to the spot where stood the H. I. Kimball House.

Our Streets.

We have devoted some space to the great domestic question of our bad streets. We give below a communication on the subject, which contains some good points.

We are glad to see that our City Council has taken hold of the matter. Against one thing we protest. Let there be no sidewalks at the city's expense, on favored localities. Let all the property holders fare alike. Let the Council furnish curbing and make it imperative for property holders to furnish the sidewalk.

But let the Council afford good HIGH crossings. Many of the crossings are absolutely worthless because as low or lower, than the streets. They should be raised high enough to be above the mud.

We hope to see prompt action.

Editors Constitution: Having noticed a number of items of late in the papers in regard to "sidewalks," will you allow a new comer to say that he cannot comprehend the stretch of imagination that designates a mud-bank a "side-walk." Your banks will do very well at a certain particular time between a wet and dry "spell," and that is all. In rain, they are muddy, in a drouth they are dusty, and at all times more or less out of repair, consequently uncomfortable and always disagreeable. I can see no good reason why Atlanta should not, like Eastern, Middle and Western towns of much less size and pretensions, have miles of good substantial plank walks. Lumber is abundant and cheap, and walks eight feet wide can be built at not exceeding forty-five cents per linear foot, (narrower, of course, for less.) With such walks, the value of property would be enhanced (many times the cost) and very much added to the beauty and finish of the city. Carriages could not encroach upon them, they would need no repairs for years, and be a perpetual source of comfort to all pedestrians. No one thing would do so much to give Atlanta a name for taste and enterprise, and render it attractive, as the building of such walks, and when once built they would not be dispensed with for any sum.

Of course they should be constructed at the expense of the property fronting thereon, and if the laws as they now are cannot command the building, procure the necessary legislation at the first opportunity. Build the walks and be happy.

"Now the woe-begone phiz
Of each walkist one meets,
Pleads for good sidewalks
Along the nasty, wet, soggy, miry, dog-goned, outrageous mud-covered streets."

NEW COMER.

What Manufacturers Do for a City.

Lewiston, and Auburn, Maine, are now practically one city, separated only by the Androscoggin river, wich is the source of their combined prosperity. The two cities are now more than ever intimately connected by a fine and permanent bridge, 600 feet in length, completed December, 1871, at a cost of about $5,000, with two spacious sidewalks and a broad driveway paved with the Nicholson pavement. The common interests and essential unity of the two cities, render of import the following combined statistics, which apply to January, 1872:

OUR MARDI GRAS LETTER.

Tableaux and all Sorts of Things.

ST. CHARLES HOTEL,
NEW ORLEANS, LA., Feb. 14, 1872.

Editors Constitution: I trust your readers have been able from my description to obtain some remote idea of the scene in the auditorium of the Varieties Theatre at the Mistick Krewe Tableaux, but the New Orleans editors say that the "task has even proved as impossible as to detail the gyrating coruscations of the ever-changing kaleidoscope." They claim to have exhausted appropriate metaphor and imaginary when they compared the sight to a stupendous bouquet of the most exquisite and rarest flowers.

The merry tinkle of the stage bell at 10½ o'clock preceded the rising of the curtain and the initiation of

THE TALEAUX.

The first tableau was the "Judgment of Paris," forgetting immortality and glory, Juno and Minerva, and awarding the golden apple to Venus for the love of beautiful but FRIVOLOUS HELEN.

Poor, silly Paris! you are not the first, last nor only one who has forgotten wisdom beneath the subtle wooing of this delusion.

The second tableau presents the resulting combat between the Greeks and Trojans and in the dim distance the Olympian deities in council, all in perfect harmony with the grand epic of the blind old bard.

Then the "trials of Ulysses" and the characters of the Odyssey are presented with perfect truthfulness. Charybdis and Sylla—those hobbies of the old school boy—are personified as huge devouring monsters; and Pluto is seen, and Circe and the Syrens.

Then the fourth tableau presents the

BATTLE OF THE FROGS AND MICE,

a satire upon the Iliad. The representations, by grown men, of frogs and mice was truly laughable by reason of the striking likeness. When the,

CURTAIN ROSE

upon the battle, there was presented to the audience fierce anger and human passions flaming from the countenances of the combattants; dead frogs and dead and dying

MICE;

and burly King Ponchartrain under the envelope of a acting as pacificator. Then follows the

CRAB

GRAND MARCH

of the Mistic Krewe of Comus led by King Comus, which answers to the grand march that precedes ordinary balls. Iaegus band struck up the music of the dance, and under the pleasing influence of Terpsichore, the horrors of the tragic fade away, and the awe-inspiring Krewe—frogs, mice and all—are gradually transformed, as if by

MAGIC,

into handsome beaux and gay revellers. The orchestra and parquette, covered over with a new floor, join hands with the stage floor and a magnificent appears. The Grand Duke promenades awhile and departs; the mazy dance and the transformed scene present new attractions; one o'clock arrives and I gather up my wits, recall myself to actual life, and bid adieu to the enchanting joy of the Mardi Gras carnival.

DANCING HALL

It is scarcely necessary to add that the

is one of the largest and most fashionable theatres in the Crescent City, and its stockholders men of culture and position and wealth I took

NUMEROUS NOTES

of this ancient city, and as I drove its boulevards, fauburgs and customs and "faible I'd prent em," but I have not the heart to inflict your readers. A few, however, in brief, and compendiously, you will permit.

THE IRISH

take the lead in wealth; the prevailing style of home is the cottage residence, probably on account of the strong winds; the dead cannot be buried under ground, because of the nearness to the water; the levee is the highest part of the city, and the descent from the bank eastward, is gradual for a mile to the swamps and fens where drouse in the semi-tropical clime the

and other reptiles; the Legislature is in session; R. Peters and B Hill call on the Governor and are shown to seats in the two Houses; R. Peters was mistaken for the Grand Duke, so he (R. P.) informs me; Federal interference alone prevented a revolution recently, the young men of the city favoring Carter as the lesser of two white waiters exclusively at the St. Charles and St Louis; Dr. Palmer's church, on La Fayette square, is very handsome; and the mile of shipping on the levee and the levee itself with its bustling trade are very interesting.

I sat in the rotunda of the St. Charles the morning after the ball while the sweet, soft south wind gently fanned my brow and wooed me to a

REVERIE.

The skies were clearly and tenderly blue and the morning glory of the sun with its cheering rays deceived me into the belief that it was the rosy month of May. It was on such a day as this the came to Eve and deceived her.

But the

MARDI GRAS

carnival is over, and delighted with the trip I return to the realities of the

with its honest and reliable people; to my home of the past five years and for all the future; to the city of the kind and warm-hearted friends who have welcomed me, the stranger in their gates, and made me one of them; and who have given me their favor and support and patronage beyond my deserts. I return here, I say, more delighted with the return than with the brief recreation.

Au revoir. SIDNEY.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Dead Duck Forney and His Sluff-off from Grant—The Press Dinner and What Happened There—What Grant Said and Did—Georgia Jottings.

[CONCLUDED.]

FORNEY KICKS OVER THE TRACES.

The heaviest blow Grant has sustained of late is the defection of John W. Forney, who, on Saturday last, resigned the collectorship of Philadelphia, with which his temporary allegiance had been bought. The name of Forney is not a fairy one, and it is surprising that this renegade politician and organizer of Kitchen cabinets, should have any influence whatever. Yet he has potent sway in Pennsylvania, and his defection is considered here as certain to result in the loss of that State to Grant. The resignation was made known under peculiar circumstances. There was a Press dinner at Welch's Saturday evening, to which both Forney and the President were invited. Grant had, however, previously accepted an invitation to dine with Senator Sherman, and stated he would meet the press gang later, say 10 o'clock. Forney having placed his resignation in the hand of a friend, came to the banquet, occupying a seat near your correspondent. When the wine began to circulate, he communicated the news of his resignation to the correspondent of his own paper, the Press, who sat behind him, and this gentleman hastily scribbled the fact on a card and passed it down to me. Not long after Forney retired, that he might not meet the President, whose vacant chair was directly opposite, leaving the company, with the two exceptions mentioned, in ignorance of his withdrawal from official life. Some time later, the Associated Press got hold of the letter of resignation, a copy of which appeared in the Sunday Herald of the following morning, and created a decided sensation in political circles. It is interpreted everywhere as meaning war on Grant.

THE PRESS DINNER.

Having referred to the press dinner above I may be pardoned for saying a few words concerning what has been pronounced the most successful affair of the kind which has ever taken place in Washington. The banquet took place at Welcher's, the celebrated caterer of Washington, whose establishment, in all its appointments, is a marvel of richness and elegance. Covers were laid for fifty-one, and in taking their seats the guests of the evening were sandwiched between the gentlemen of the press. The following gentlemen were present as guests:

The President of the United States, invited by DeB. R Keim; Vice President Colfax; J. G. Blaine, Speaker of the House of Representatives; Senator Cameron, Senator Anthony, Senator Schurz, Senator-elect Sargeant, Hon. James Brooks, Hon. James A. Garfield, Hon. S. S. Cox, General Horace Porter, secretary to the President; Governor McCormick, Colonel J. W. Forney, Murat Halstead, Cincinnati Commercial; Governor H. D. Cooke, Alexander Shepherd, Colonel W. M. Grosvenor, and Mr. F. A. Easman, Postmaster of Chicago.

Below will be found a list of the members of the Press who were present:

George W. Adams, New York World, president; C. S. Noyes, Evening Star, vice president; J. MacFarland, Philadelphia Press, J. H. Riley, Alta Californian; F. A. Richardson, Baltimore Associated Press; R. J. Hinton, New York Evening Mail; S. H. Kauffmann, Evening Star; D. R. McKee, New York Associated Press; Don Piatt, Capital; A. Devine, New York Associated Press; D. F. Murphy, Globe; Cliff Worden, Baltimore Gazette; E. B. Wright, Chicago Post; I. N. Burritt, Sunday Herald; W. B. Shaw, Boston Transcript; Chas. A. Pilsbury, ATLANTA CONSTITUTION; George a Townsend, Chicago Tribune; J. J. McElhone, Globe; J. B. Stillson, New York World; W. P. Copeland, New York Journal of Commerce; Henry Hayes, New York Associated Press; O. K. Harris, Boston Journal; J. P. Foley, Republican; D. C. Forney, Sunday Chronicle; H. J. Ramsdell, New York Tribune; Myron Fox, Daily Chronicle; Louis Bagger, Daily Patriot; Thomas Nast, Harper's Weekly.

The President did not arrive until nearly 10 o'clock, and his first move was characteristic—he lighted a cigar. The dinner being then over and coffee and liquors circulating he, however, simply followed the example of many others around the festive board. The bill of fare bore the inscription: "The pen is mightier than the sword," and referring to this, Governor Cooke toasted the President in connection with the sword. In reply Grant said he had laid down the sword on entering civil life, and that his motto now was, "Let us have peace." He spoke without hesitation and in good taste, it being remarked by many that they had never seen the President appear to better advantage. The correspondents, by prearrangement, generally refrained from speech-making; but somo excellent addresses were delivered by their guests, and it was nearly midnight when the party broke up.

CONGRESSIONAL JOTTINGS.

Under the call of States in the House yesterday, Mr. Bigby introduced a bill to amend the army appropriation act for 1872, and to extend the powers and duties of Commissioner of Claims; also, a bill for an appropriation for a public building at Atlanta. The first was referred to the Committee on Claims, and the second to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

On motion of Gen. Young, the Committee on the Judiciary were directed to report a bill, at as early a day as possible, for the removal of the political disabilities of all persons who have applied for such relief. Of this measure, the Patriot says:

"One of the best things that the House did to day, was to pass, by more than two-thirds vote, Mr. Young's resolution directing the Committee on the Judiciary to report a bill to relieve from their political disabilities all persons who have made application for such relief. The Committee can hardly fail to obey this mandatory resolution; but the only fear is that in the present humor of the Republicans or the Senate body will not consent to any amnesty measure. The House seems ready to pass one at any time."

The bill abolishing the duty on tea and coffee passed by a vote of 53 to 26.

The Ku-Klux Committee reported. A minority report was presented but not received—the vote stood 66 to 130, not two-thirds,—because it contained phrases disrespectful to the President; but afterwards, upon condition that it should be pruned of offensive and unparliamentary phrases, it was received without a division.

House adjourned.

MIDNIGHT DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, February 19.—The debate in the Senate to-day was very bitter in tone. Conkling spoke for three hours and defended the administration in everything, and assailed Sumner and Schurz with great bitterness. He charged Schurz with furnishing ammunition for the democrats and said that 200,000 copies of this and other independent Republican senators speeches were circulated by Democrats in New Hampshire, and is more prized than regular Democratic documents. It charged him and Sumner with conspiring to malign the President and with being willing even to disgrace their country if it would aid them in injuring Grant, and with holding unauthorized communication with French agents, etc. It cited an old statute punishing such treasonable communication with foreign governments or agents as a misdemeanor. He read from a German paper in Chicago an attack on Schurz. Schurz said it was edited by the Collector of Internal Revenue. [Laughter.] Conkling said he read it to show how Scurz's conduct was regarded by the intelligent people of the country.

Schurz said it only showed how it was regarded by Internal Revenue Collectors. [Laughter.] No action.

Adjourned.

FRANCE.

PARIS, February 19.—George H. Booker, the American Minister to Constantinople, was yesterday presented to Thiers by Washburn.

Thiers gave a state dinner last evening, at which Lord Lyons, Mr. Washburn, Senor Oedesaga and Count Armin were among the guests.

The announcement of the arrival of an American squadron at Naples was premature. The fleet is still at anchor in the harbor at Nice, and it is now doubtful whether or not it will go to Naples.

The Opinion Nationale asserts that a conspiracy has been discovered in which Generals under the late Emperor are the leaders. Their plan was to disperse the Assembly by force and take possession of the government, when they were to be supported by a large number of ex-officers and soldiers of the empire from the north.

The Opinion says: "In consequence of this revelation, the Belgian frontier is carefully guarded, and no one is allowed to cross into France without a passport.

By James M. Smith, Governor of Said State.

WHEREAS, On the 28th day of December, in the year of our Lord, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Seventy-one, the Hon. Benjamin Conley, then exercising the Executive powers of the Government, issued his proclamation, making known, in substance, that, upon the petition of Henry Clews and Theodore Fowler, of the city of New York, bankers and partners, using the firm name and style of Henry Clews & Co., he had seized, and did thereby seize and take possession, for and in behalf of the State, of the Cherokee Railroad, formerly the Cartersville and Van Wert Railroad, with all the property of the said, The Cherokee Railroad Company, formerly the Cartersville and Van Wert Railroad Company; and that he did thereby, as Governor of this State, place the same in charge of Daniel S. Printup, Esq., of Rome, Georgia, as agent of the State of Georgia, with full power and authority, as such agent of the State, to take into his possession all the property aforesaid of the said, The Cherokee Railroad Company, to control and manage the same in conformity with the prayer of the said Henry Clews & Co., and in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled "An Act to loan the credit of the State to the Cartersville and Van Wert Railroad Company," approved March 12th, 1869; and that payment might be made—after discharging laborers' liens—of the sum of six thousand one hundred and twenty-five dollars, semi-annual interest, due September 1st, 1870, on one hundred and seventy-five bonds of the said The Cartersville and Van Wert Railroad Company, numbered from one (1) to one hundred and seventy-five (175) inclusive, each for one thousand dollars, with interest coupons attached, payable semi-annually on the first day of March and the first day of September in each year at the rate of seven per cent. per annum; and which bonds the said Henry Clews & Co., averred in their said petition were owned and held by them, and issued to cover the first fourteen miles of said Railroad, and that each had indorsed thereon the guarantee of the State of Georgia for the payment of the principal and interest thereof in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An Act to loan the credit of the State to the Cartersville and Van Wert Railroad Company," approved March 12, 1869.

And whereas, The Constitution of this State inhibits the granting or loaning of the credit of the State to aid any company in which there is not already an equal amount invested by private persons; and whereas, also the act entitled "An Act to loan the credit of the State to The Cartersville and Van Wert Railroad Company," approved March 12, 1869, gave power to the Governor, in behalf of the State, to indorse the guarantee of the State on the bonds of said company only when, and as sections, each of five consecutive miles, commencing at Cartersville, had been completed and put in running order, and then only to the extent of twelve thousand five hundred dollars per mile, of the sections so completed, and in running order.

And whereas, It appears from reliable information received by me that at the time the guarantee of the State was indorsed by Rufus B. Bullock, late Governor, upon the one hundred and seventy-five bonds aforesaid, for the purpose of loaning the credit of the State to aid the said Cartersville and Van Wert Railroad Company to the extent of $175,000, not so much even as to two thousand dollars had been invested in the said company by private persons, and that not so much as one section of five miles of said Railroad had been completed and put in running order by said company, and that the signature of said Henry Clews, as Treasurer of said company, appears on the face of the said bonds, whereby he stands charged with notice of the illegal and unauthorized indorsements aforesaid.

And whereas, The said indorsements of guarantee, made on the said bonds as aforesaid, were made without authority of law, and are in no wise the act or deed of the State of Georgia, and there being, in my opinion, no good and sufficient reason for allowing the said Daniel S. Printup to continue to have or exercise the powers of agent of the State conferred upon him as aforesaid in the proclamation of the Hon. Benjamin Conley.

Now therefore I, James M. Smith, Governor of said State, do issue this, my proclamation, making known that I have this day revoked and annulled the power and authority conferred upon the said Daniel S. Printup under the proclamation issued by the Hon. Benjamin Conley as aforesaid, and that the said Daniel S. Printup has been ordered and directed to turn over all property of said railroad company, of every kind which may have come into his possession, power or control, as agent of the State aforesaid, to such person or persons as may be lawfully entitled to the possession of the same, and that the said Daniel S. Printup shall forthwith dismiss any and all suits, whether in law or equity, commenced by him as agent aforesaid, for the recovery or maintaining possession by him of any property or effects whatever of said railroad company.

Given under my Hand, and the Great Seal of the State, at the Capitol, in the city of Atlanta, the Seventeenth day of February, in the year of our Lord Eighteen Hundred and Seventy-two, and of the Independence of the United States of America the Ninety-sixth.

By the Governor: JAMES M. SMITH.

GEORGIA PRESS ASSOCIATION.—THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION states that Mr. Crittenden, of the H. I. Kimball House, in a note to the secretary of the Georgia Press Association, tenders the use of his ball-room as a place of meeting, in case the annual meeting is held in Atlanta. THE CONSTITUTION learns also of a movement to get up a supper and ball during the meeting of the Press, should it be held in Atlanta.

Should it be the pleasure of the Press to agree upon an excursion, we think that favorable arrangements could be made with the railroads for that purpose. A trip around via Macon, Savannah, Charleston and Augusta, from Atlanta, we think, would be a delightful one.

As one of the press, we cordially return our thanks to Mr. Crittenden for the proffered use of his elegant ball-room for our meeting.

Now let the members speak out at once. It will require some time to make arrangements with the railroads for the excursion. We suggest that the President and the Executive Committee of the Association take the matter in hand. What say the press?—La Grange Reporter

A BEAUTIFUL TRIBUTE.—There is nothing more touchingly beautiful than the tribute of a fond and loving husband to the memory of an adored wife. It is the natural expression of the feelings of the heart taking shape and form.

A few days ago we saw one of the handsomest monuments it has ever been our privilege to see, designed and executed in this city, to mark the spot where the remains of Mrs. James R. Wylie lie entombed at Calhoun, Georgia. The monument is of pure Italian marble with gothic finish. Beneath a gothic leaf, is a wreath of flowers in full relief and elaborately finished encircling that word so full of tenderness, "Wife," while at the base of the monument that word so significant of loving kindness "Mother" appears in bold relief. Mrs. Wylie died on the 19th of November, 1871.

The work was designed and executed by Mr. H. P. Guess, of Stone Mountain, and reflects great credit upon him. With his limited education and facilities, as a sculptor we think him unequalled.

Editors Constitution: On looking over the proceeding of the City Council of last Friday night, I found they had adopted a report of the Fire Department, recommending the building of a watch-tower, and hanging a bell weighing 5 000 to 6,000 pounds ... financial condition of the city will justify whenever the ... of $15 000 or $20,000 for such tify the expenditure ... and the working of Game- purposes. "Will put up thirty-seven boxes, strike one alarm bell, and fit up one main station for $20,000; or 24 boxes, one bell striker for main station for $ 5,000. That is the regular price, and perhaps the parties could be induced to put in a few more boxes for the same amount." Was urged by Mr. Berkele, late chief of Fire Department, to be present at the meeting of the committee and call their attention to the fire alarm telegraph, and promised to do so but failed on account of ill health. ATLANTA AS A TOBACCO MARKET.—We have repeatedly called attention to the advantages and importance of Atlanta as a tobacco market, and noted its rapid increase.

The Atlanta Journal says, with great force and truth:

"Within the past few years, the tobacco trade of Atlanta has rapidly increased to great magnitude. No other has exceeded it. In 1866, two tenements sufficed for those who made tobacco a specialty; but each represented heavy stocks.

"But the favorable location as a distributing point, and topographical and climatical conditions of Atlanta, give her advantages seldom enjoyed.

"As to railway facilities, they are artificial, and of a character to be created provided any community possesses adequate means to construct them. But altitude and climate are advantages which money can not create or command.

Atlanta has now quick, and constant and certain communication by rail with almost all parts of the Union. She will soon be in direct communication, by the shortest possible route—the Atlanta and Richmond Air-Line Railway—with the original great tobacco-producing region. And not only this: the tract in Georgia crossed by this road, as well as other ... commercially tributary to Atlanta, have been pro... ...ounced first-class tobacco lands.

These last-named facts point to Atlanta as a tobacco manufac... ...ring city, as well as market. In fact, the business has been carried on here to some extent already, with satis... ...factory results.

"But the altitude of Atlanta, nearly eleven hundred feet above tide water, in a comparatively low latitude, gives her climatical conditions not equalled by any other Southern city for storing and preserving tobacco. The air is dry, the atmosphere clear, and so constant is the current at all seasons that ventilation is always perfect. Being thus dry and clear generally, no place in the South can so safely store such large quantities of tobacco; and consequently, as a constant and cheap market, where all grades can be found at all seasons of the year, in a perfectly sound condition, Atlanta may be regarded as without a rival.

The rapid increase of trade in the article demonstrates the proposition."

In connection with this, we are pleased to note that Messrs. Meador & Bro. have offered a premium for tobacco raised near here, in order to stimulate its production in this section. This is a move in the right direction.

THE POLK COUNTY KU KLUX.—Yesterday morning the preliminary examination of James Crocker, William Crocker, Thomas Davis, George Mobley, Dr. E. H. Richardson, Charles Bunn, John Crocker, Thomas Crocker and Alfred Watts, of Polk county, came up for a hearing before United States Commissioner, W. B Smith.

John L. Conley appeared for the government and Colonel L. E. Bleckely, George Hillyer, J. W. H. Underwood, J. D. Waddell and General W. Phillips for the accused.

The first witness was a man named Martin Alred, who testified that on the night of June 22d, 1871, he was taken from his house and whipped by a party of men. He testified that he recognized James Crocker when his wife came out of the house with a big light. Alred's son-in-law, Thomas Rogers, testified that eight men hit Alred three licks a-piece; that they charged Alred with pulling out sheeps eyes, and with stealing for fifteen years. Two or three of the men had no disguises on. Alred hid under the bed. There was no light outside of the house to see by. He did not see any of the defendants that night. Sarah Alred, wife of the prosecutor, testified that she saw Jim Crocker, George Mobley, Tom Davis and William Crocker that night in her house. Tom Davis was not disguised; Jim Crocker, W. Crocker and George Mobley had pasteboard hats, paper on their faces and blue sacks on. Witness, as soon as the door was broke down, raised a big light and looked at the men. She recognized those named, but did not recognize the others. She didn't go out in the yard with the light.

The men said they came to see Alred about whipping sheep and pulling their eyes out.

Witness only used her eyes and the light. She was silent for fifteen minutes or more, (a remarkable woman.)

The Alreds and Crockers had not been on friendly terms for a long time.

Thomas Daniel said that Jim Crocker told him he had reported Alred to the friends of the Ku Klux; subsequently he said he was afraid the Ku-Klux would whip Alred, and the latter would blame him with it.

Crocker said he knew nothing of the whipping and had nothing to do with it.

Alred has a bad character and his oath is not entitled to credit.

Witness has heard of Alred's stealing hogs, and he is now indicted for perjury.

Americus Rogers, daughter of Alred, testified that her father was charged with gouging out William Crocker's sheep's eyes. She recognized some of the men, but couldn't describe how the paper was fastened on Jim Crocker's nose. Her mother went into the yard with a light after all were gone.

The defense offered Thomas Davis as the first witness. He staid at Jim Crocker's. On the night of June 22d and 23d, he and Crocker were at home all night. William Crocker and Thomas Crocker slept in the same room. Alred got out warrants against some of the accused, and they were tried on Monday. Witness was not accused then.

William Crocker testified that he was cutting oats near by and did not go home, but staid all night at Jim Crocker's. When asked if he ever was in a den, said that he lived in a shanty.

Thomas Crocker corroborates Davis' and William Crocker.

Col. J. D. Waddell testified that when he left Polk county three years ago, Alred's reputation was bad, and his oath was not entitled to credit.

J. W. H. Underwood corroborated Col. Waddell. He defended Alred once and acquitted him on a technicality.

Mr. Thompson, Col. E. N. Broyles, J. A. Peek, W. M. Hutchins, J. O. Waddell and Dr. Borders, all testified to Alred's bad character and the want of credit for his oath.

Alred had been indicted by the Crockers several times.

Miss Ellen Crocker, daughter of James Crocker, testified that on that night she went to her uncle William's. John W. Crocker was there, sick with tooth ache. They heard a noise about midnight in the direction of Aldred's and went to the door.

John W. Crocker corroborates Ellen's testimony.

James Crocker testified that he had not been to Alred's house since the close of the war.

J. T. Carter, son-in-law of Alred, testified that he heard a conversation between George Mobley and Alred. Mobley denied being at the whipping, but said he wanted the lawing stopped, as it had cost him $35, and that the Crockers had got him in the same shape. Heard Mobley say he was not present at the whipping. Mobley was drinking at the time, and fell down that day.

George Mobley, son-in-law of James Crocker, testified that he was at home that night. That he did not recollect telling Carter that the case had cost him $35; that he had only paid out $5; that he was not at Alred's house that night.

This is a brief synopsis of the evidence.

The counsel for the prosecution moved for the discharge of Dr. E. H. Richardson, Charlee Bunn, John W. Crocker, Thomas Crocker and Alfred Watts, which was granted.

Argument will be heard this morning in the cases of James Crocker, William Crocker, Thomas Davis and George Mobley.

HEALTH! BEAUTY!!

Dr. Radway's
Sarsaparillian Resolvent

Has made the most astonishing Cures; so quick, so rapid are the changes the Body undergoes, under the influence of this Truly Wonderful Medicine, that

EVERY DAY AN INCREASE IN FLESH AND WEIGHT IS SEEN AND FELT.

THE GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER.

Every drop of the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT communicates through the Blood, Sweat, Urine, and other fluids and juices of the system the vigor of life, for it repairs the wastes of the body with new and sound material. Scrofula, Syphilis, Consumption, Glandular disease, Ulcers in the throat, Mouth, Tumors, Nodes in the Glands and other parts of the system, Sore Eyes, Strumorous discharges from the Ears, and the worst forms of Skin diseases. Eruptions, Fevers, Sores, Scald Head, Ring Worm, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Acne, Black Spots, Worms in the Flesh, Tumors, Cancers in the Womb, and all weakening and painful discharges, Night Sweats, Loss of Sperm and all wastes of the life principle, are within the curative range of this wonder of Modern Chemistry, and a few days' use will prove to any person using it for either of these forms of disease its potent powers to cure them.

If the patient, daily becoming reduced by the wastes and decomposition that is continually progressing, succeeds in arresting these wastes, and repairs the same with new material made from healthy blood—and this the SARSAPARILLIAN will and does secure—a cure is certain; for when once this remedy commences its work of purification, and succeeds in diminishing the loss of wastes, its repairs will be rapid, and every day the patient will feel himself growing better and stronger, the food digesting better, appetite improving, and flesh and weight increasing.

Not only does the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT excel all known remedial agents in the cure of Chronic, Scrofulous, Constitutional, and Skin diseases; but it is the only positive cure for

Kidney and Bladder Complaints

Urinary, and Womb diseases, Gravel, Diabetes, Dropsy, Stoppage of Water, Incontinence of Urine, Bright's Disease, Albuminuria, and in all cases where there are brick dust deposits, or the water is thick, cloudy, mixed with substances like the white of an egg, or threads like white silk, or there is a morbid, dark, bilious appearance, and white bone-dust deposits, and when there is a pricking, burning sensation when passing water, and pain in the Small of the Back and along the Loins.

HOW TO GET RICH.

Put on the airs of an eight-keyed flute,
If you are only a penny whistle;
Pass where'er you can for a garden rose,
If you're only a wayside thistle.

Blow, whenever you blow your horn,
So the people can understand
That you may be sharp, but you won't be flat
In society's great brass band.

Pass the plate or the hat in church
With the usual Sabbath air,
But move with a mild, religious squeak,
That people may know you're there.

If you carry a nose six inches long,
And a beak can scarce be longer,
Believe it a sign of percepti n strong,
And the longer it is, the stronger.

But if in order of nasal tubes
Your organ is brief in measure,
Then, brevity being the soul of wit,
Consider your pug a treasure.

Love your neighbor—but mark the force
Of the Gospel rule of grace—
The more you admire yourself, my friend,
The higher your neighbor's place.

Clink your dime in the Deacon's pan,
As if you were throwing gold,
And give with an eye to the business hope
Of reaping a hundred fold.

Whether your reading is little or great,
Quote right or never quote;
Polish your uppers, though down at the heel,
And never indorse a note.

Always advance best hand, best foot,
Best hand best foot your own,
And thus you may feast on the fat of the land,
While others enjoy the bone.

THE MOUNTAIN OF THE TWO LOVERS.

We forgot in what book it was, many years ago, that we read the story of a lover who was to win his mistress by carrying her to the top of a mountain, and how he did win her, and how they ended their days on the same spot.

We think the scene was in Switzerland, but the mountain, though enough to tax his stout heart to the uttermost, must have been among the lowest. It was, at any rate, so high that the father of the lady, a proud noble, thought it impossible for a young man so burdened to scale it. For this reason alone, in scorn, he bade him do it, and his daughter should be his.

The peasantry assembled in the valley to witness so extraordinary a sight. They measured the mountain with their eyes; they communed with one another, and shook their heads; but all admired the young man; and some of his attendants, looking at the village damsels, thought they could do as much. The father was on horseback, apart and sullen, repenting that he had subjected his daughter even to the show of such a hazard; but he thought it would teach his inferiors a lesson.

The young man (the son of a small landed proprietor, who had some pretentions to wealth, though none to nobility) stood, respectful-looking, but confident, rejoicing in his heart that he should win his lady-love, though at the cost of a noble pain, which he could scarcely think of as a pain, considering who it was he was to carry. If he died for it, he should, at least, have had her in his arms, and have looked her in the face, which he contemplated with such transport as is known only to real lovers; for none others know how respect hightens the joy of dispensing with formality, and how the dispensing with formality ennobles and makes grateful the respect.

The lady stood by the side of her father, pale, anxious, yet hopeful. She believed her lover would succeed, but only because she considered him in every respect the noblest of his sex, and that nothing was too much for his strength and valor. She knew not what might happen in the chances common to all. She felt the bitterness of being herself the burden to him and the task; and she dared neither to look at her father nor the mountain. She fixed her eyes now upon the crowd (which nevertheless she beheld not,) and now on her hand and her fingers' ends, which she doubled up towards her with a pretty petulance—the only deception she had ever used. Once or twice a daughter or a mother slipped out of the crowd, and coming up to her, notwithstanding their fears of the Lord Baron, kissed that hand which she knew not what to do with.

The father said, "Now, sir, to put an end to this mummery;" and the lover, turning pale, took up the lady.

The spectators rejoice to see the manner in which he moves off, slow but secure, and as if encouraging his lady-love. They mount the hill, they proceed well; he halts an instant before he gets midway, and seems refusing something; then ascends at a quicker rate; and now, being at the mid-way point, shifts the lady from one side to the other. The spectators give a great shout. The Baron, with an air of indifference, bites the tip of his gauntlet, and then casts on them an eye of rebuke. At the shout the lover resumes his way. Slow but not feeble is his step; yet it gets slower. He stops again. The women begin to tremble, but the men say he will be victorious. He resumes again. He is half-way between the middle and the top. He rushes; he stops; he staggers; but he does not fall. Another shout from the men, and he resumes once more; two-thirds of the remaining part of the way are conquered. They are certain that the lady kisses him on the forehead. The women burst into tears, and the stoutest men look pale. He ascends slower than ever, but seeming to be more sure. He halts, but it is only to plant his foot to go on again and thus he picks his way, planting his foot at every step, and then gaining ground with an effort. The lady lifts up her arms, as if to lighten him. See! he is almost at the top! He stops, he struggles, he moves sideways, taking very little steps, and bringing one foot every time close to the other. Now, he is all but on the top. He halts again; he is fixed; he staggers. A groan goes through the multitude. Suddenly he turns full front towards the top, it is luckily almost a level; he staggers, but it is forward. Yes, every limb in the multitude makes a movement as if it would assist him. See! at last he is on the top! and down he falls flat with his burden. An enormous shout! He has won! he has won! But neither of them gets up. If he has fainted it is with joy, and it is in her arms.

The Baron put spurs to his horse, the crowd following him. Half-way he is obliged to dismount; they ascend the rest of the hill together, silent and happy, the Baron ready to burst with shame and impatience. They reach the top. The lovers are face to face on the ground, the lady clasping him with both arms, his lying on each side.

"Traitor!" exclaimed the Baron; "thou hast practised this feat before on purpose to deceive me. Arise!"

"You cannot expect it, my lord," said a worthy man, who was rich enough to speak his mind; "Samson himself might take his rest after such a deed."

"Part them!" said the Baron.

Several knelt down beside them.

"Heaven forbid that they should ever be parted more!" said a venerable man; "they never can be." He turned his old face, streaming with tears, and looked up at the Baron—"My lord, they are dead!"

ATLANTA
City Hospital.

THE need of a CITY HOSPITAL for Atlanta has long been felt, but all efforts heretofore for the establishment of such have failed, our people being too poor to raise the money necessary for such a purpose, and the depleted condition of our State Treasury being such as to render successful legislation in the matter both impracticable and hopeless.

It is, therefore, proposed to appeal to all friends of so benevolent a project, and thus secure a nucleus to encourage an increase of the private donations already promised, which will render the scheme a success; and while the erection of such an Institution will be an enduring Monument to the Charity and Liberality of our citizens, it will also be in keeping with our onward march in the cause of Civilization and Progress.
